

Announcing the 93rd Collegiate Dairy Products Evaluation Contest

The management of the Collegiate Dairy Products Evaluation Contest is pleased to announce that this year's contest will be held on November 7 & 8 at Hoffman Estates, Illinois. The industry host of the contest is Tate & Lyle. This unique two day event will bring the brightest and best dairy food students from around the country for a competition testing the quality of their sensory skills, a chance to network with industry personnel and some wonderful hospitality.

The Tate & Lyle staff will be utilizing the Northern Illinois University Conference Center in Hoffman Estates, IL. to host this major competition. Each year an industry partner is selected for the honor of hosting this wonderful event. The blending of the most knowledgeable college students with real industry challenges makes for an excellent learning experience.

If you would like to know more about this unique competition, or you would like to enter the contest please go to the website www.dairyproductscontest.org for more information.
